An employee may only receive benefits from the use of South Carolina Technical College System (SCTCS) resources or work performed by students for instructional purposes if the benefits are also available to the general public. The employee cannot derive personal gain or other benefit from work performed by students even if the work is performed for instructional purposes.

To clarify, an employee of SCTCS System Office/College may not:

- be paid for work performed by themselves or students that was part of a classroom learning activity;
- contract with a company to perform work for the company using SCTCS System Office/College resources and/or students whereby the employee
